Preface

The following study guide has been as carefully constructed to give fundamental support to the ACWGC Union Army Awards system. Army and Corps Commanders will find this study especially useful as a base guide for determining the proper battlefield ribbon for the particular scenario played.

The study guide is constructed in a rolling table format in which all of the actions and battles of the main game package(s) are primarily listed in order of their historical or ahistorical date/time chronology. Larger, multiple-day scenarios generally follow in sequence all of the smaller, single-day scenarios of which they are composed. Note should be taken that this order is not always the order in which the scenarios are presented upon the original game disks. The game and scenario designers did not undertake a common, progressive identification method in their presentations that could be considered universal in its application. Therefore there are great differences from game package to game package in how the scenarios are listed, as well as great differences within the same game package!

Within the basic chronological order scenarios are further grouped based generally upon the date of publication. Thus the TalonSoft BattleGround scenarios and modifications will always precede the HPS Simulations scenarios and modifications.

The table is always headed by the description of the battle or action with which the scenarios associated. If there are any scenarios within that description that qualify by turn count for a possible major Victory, the associated file name and graphic of the award is shown.

Each scenario entry within a table includes the ACWGC abbreviation of the parent game, the scenario ID number or type if given, the number of constructed game turns, the historical date of the scenario, and the exact description as given within the game. In addition, the number of scenario turns is prefixed with an alpha character(s), which identifies the nature of the scenario. The exact program scn (scenario) file identification is also included with the scenario description.

Note flashes are appropriately inserted into the study guide where necessary to indicate additional information given at the end. Officers are encouraged to scan the abbreviation Legend Key in the rear before using this guide. Special notes are sometimes inserted into the tables for immediate read.

The decision by HPS Simulations to include the Second Bull Run battles in with the Antietam battles was understandably driven by the principle need to create an extended campaign path that represented the early portion of the Eastern Theater action which occurred immediately after McClellan's Peninsula Campaign. Thus the HPS campaign paths all begin with the first movement and action by Lee, Cedar Mountain, to take the war northward after McClellan was stalemated.

The inclusion of the First Bull Run scenarios by HPS was considered an added bonus to the game package, but one that effectively created a group of stand-alone actions outside of the HPS campaign pathway. It also blurred the distinction originally created by TalonSoft in mating the First and Second Bull Run actions together.

The ACWGC Union Army chose to keep the distinction for two, separate FMV's, one for Bull Run and one for Antietam, in the HPS format. The HPS Antietam FMV is based only upon those scenarios that represent, from the Union viewpoint, the actions that occurred after McClellan was again given command of the forces that retreated towards Washington after the Second Bull Run battle. It is up to the individual player to keep track of his own Major Victories that would qualify for either FMV award.

⁶ This scenario should not be confused with the Ely's Ford scenario of the HPS Campaign Chancellorsville package.
